Dear Litha

We would like to extend to you our deepest and most heartfelt thanks for the incredible manner in which you guided our daughter, Hallelujah's media journey as she made her debut as South Africa's youngest author. The rate at which you were able to, at the drop of a hat, secure interviews with some of South Africa's most popular radio stations, promoting both Hallelujah and her book, was staggering.

You saw what we saw in her and her book and the story it tells, but more importantly, perhaps, you were able to get others to see it too. This has had the most remarkable impact on her journey as she has made her debut and we cannot thank you enough for your tireless effort, for your vision, your support and your encouragement as we navigated what is, to us, an entirely foreign space.

One of Hallelujah's interviews received over 900 000 views in less than a week – we would never have found our way to this platform and to reach so many people, without you, and for that and your belief in her story, we must thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

The reception Hallelujah received at the various radio stations you secured for her interview is a testimony to you and the manner in which you briefed and prepared them to treat her, as your client. They were warm, accommodating, welcoming and perhaps most importantly, treated her, not like a grown up, but like a little girl who was excited to share a piece of herself with them. They treated this moment, for her, with kindness, patience and enthusiasm, and for this, we owe you our deepest gratitude.

We cannot recommend you, and Summit and Soujourn enough (although we certainly won't stop trying!) as a consummate professional and one who goes above and beyond for their clients – a rare thing to find. Thank you for your passion, your vision, your talent and your professionalism and thank you for extending them all in our direction.

With our heartfelt thanks and appreciation,

Skhona and Theodora Khumalo
